

Author writes of Korean dishes

Susan Kim, 55, a Korean American who came to live in Auburn from Chicago five years ago, has just written a c o o k b o o k called "Korean Low-fat Cooking."

Hometown

Kim, who came to America from Korea in 1962, is now a student at the Adult Education Center in Auburn. She says the book will be out very soon will be available at Sharon's Books in Auburn Towne Center on Elm Ave.

Kim says she wrote the book because she loves to cook and learned Korean cooking from her family. She has prepared her Korean specialty dishes for weddings, local clubs and some churches.

Sharon's Books plans to feature Kim at a book-signing event when her book comes out. Kim will have some of her dishes available to sample for those who attend her book signing.

If interested in purchasing a cookbook, call Kim at 823-8461 to order one.

Todd Michael Moore recently earned his bachelor of arts degree in psychology from San Jose State University. He has been accepted for graduate school at Virginia Tech State University in Blacksburg, Va., where he will study for his doctorate degree.

Moore is the son of Joe and Kathy Moore of Auburn.

Andrew Ponce graduated May 20, 1995, from the University of Nevada, in Reno, Nev. with his bachelor of arts degree. His major was psychology with a minor in criminology.

Ponce, the son of Jesus and Susana T. Ponce of Penryn, he completed Penryn Elementary School and graduated from Del Oro High School in 1990.

Ponce is employed as program coordinator for United Cerebral Palsy — Northern Nevada in its Supported Living Arrangement Program.

Russell Joseph Petruzzelli of Auburn is among the candidates for degrees this spring on the University of Oklahoma Norman campus.

Commencement ceremonies for the May graduates and the students who received their degrees in summer and winter of 1994 were held May 13 in the Oklahoma Memorial Stadium.

The featured speaker for the event was award-winning actor and Oklahoma native James Garner.

Charli Hoffman, a Sophomore at Golden Sierra High School, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hoffman of Garden Valley, has been selected to attend high school in Germany next year as a World Learning Congress-Bundestag Youth Exchange scholarship student.

Please See HOMETOWN, A11